ABOUT THE SHELBY AWARD:

A high school student from Silver City, NM, entered a national history competition. She decided to tackle the topic of the 1978 Shroud of Turin research expedition, a significant event in New Mexico, national, and international history and the largest scientific investigation ever to study a single artifact. It gathered the most essential research to date concerning this object.

The topic has an inescapable connection to Jesus Christ. Thus, some considered it impossible to study without bias. Some refuse to approach or discuss the topic simply for this reason. This is deeply offensive to those who study the Shroud with sound research seeking truth. In response, we have established the Shelby Scholarship, an annual competition of Shroud study.
